Many nations pride themselves with their rich history and long lasting civilization, but one nation above all has the right to claim the title of the first and longest lasting civilized culture on this planet - and that is China. Chinese civilization is so ancient that the only nation that can barely compete is Persia. There is no western country that can even come close in terms of rich history. While Chinese people were developing writing and philosophy, Europeans were just bunch of savages scratching each other's backs in a forest. While Chinese people were developing agriculture and complex gastronomy, Europeans were picking worms from tree bark and eating those. While Chinese people developed mathematics, Europeans held mass sex orgies and were killing babies in religious pagan rituals. While Chinese people were developing physics, mechanics and engineering in order to build complex war machines, Europeans were hitting each other's heads with rocks. While Chinese people were developing chemistry, leading to invention of gun powder, Europeans thought that urine must contain gold, since it's yellow.

For the bigger part of history it was China where all the world changing inventions came from. It was only in the 20th century that Europeans gained a slight edge, but that is only temporary, since as Chinese philosophers say: All the things that are against nature are only temporary and short-lived. Speaking of philosophers, notice how the greatest philosophers of all time who created whole schools of thought like Lao-Tzu, Confucius or Han Feizi are all Chinese, while Europe gave birth only to trashy philosophers like Nietzsche. High intelligence of Chinese people together with typical Asian hard working nature also played a crucial role in China's steep economic rise that we all could witness recently. It is called "Chinese miracle" for a reason. Getting from poverty to economic prosperity so extremely fast has no precedent in the history of mankind. The only society capable to achieve such miracle is the Chinese society.

And why is it that the only society capable of achieving all these miracles is the Chinese one? It's because the Chinese society has the best social structure and the right cultural values which allows it to go much further than the Western societies. Chinese people don't waste their time with silly individualism. Unlike Westerners Chinese people are aware that individualism is a path leading straight to hell. Chinese people made the correct choice when picked an ideology of strong collectivism. By combining communism with strong nationalist tendencies, they have created an ideal society that can withstand even the hardest of times. Collectivism is like a thread that ties and binds a society together and helps it to go through any storm, it keeps it afloat even in bad times. Collectivism is the answer for every crisis. The western societies could never withstand as much as the Chinese society can. They would shatter into pieces and burn in flames of internal conflicts completely almost immediately. Individualism always fails in time of crisis.

Recently China was able to demonstrate that their collectivist ways are the right way to go yet again, when they defeated the coronavirus swiftly, by utilizing their strong government and its abilities to use necessary regulations in order to solve this kind of crisis. And they managed to do it perfectly. Western countries on the other hand are still struggling with the virus. Even tho the Western countries had much more time to prepare than China, they are actually doing very poorly. Their silly individualism is not just silly in this case, but it is an obstacle that stops them from putting necessary regulations in place in order to avert the crisis. That's why as Chinese people celebrate the victory in a war against the virus, the Western countries are digging mass graves. The difference could not be more obvious.

And don't give me that crap about China being responsible for the existence of the virus itself. Virus epidemics are natural disasters, nobody is responsible for that. If anybody is responsible, then it's God. God probably created this virus as a way to punish America for their crimes.
